Yeah I was so surprised

107 I was at both stop the steal rallies and for the first one, a lot of police were smiling and happy to see us. A lot of them weren't of course. But it seems like the DC police don't have just one political agenda and they aren't as blue as you'd think. For the second march, there were NO police anywhere during the day. It was sort of weird.

22 ▼ I feel that you are correct. There are, sadly, a great number of soyboys out there, but how many of them have even the slightest interest in becoming police? It would make an interesting Venn diagram if I could get some decent numbers...

23 And commie Shills, trying to build hate against the cops.

A lot of that. Nearly every time cop bashing on here, I check the user name, and the account is very new, often post-election.

I expect to see red hat wearing agitators in the crowd, trying to get anti-cop rhetoric going, and violence toward the cops, so it can be amplified on the media.

12 It's not always that. Look at rising. The posts about the guy being arrested for holding a firearm while his "buddies" ran off and left him out to dry. Those cops are the ones that people upset at them are pointing at. Those are the ones that are going to start something tonight and tomorrow. That's what people need to be aware of and people that are here need to be careful right now.

8 I look at it like this... (and I am fine if you disagree, that's okay)

Cops are people.

Most People are good. Some are not. Some are fucked up. Others are really fucked up. But, most are good.

To add to that: A lot of us who are working (I'm retired), wear a mask at work, even though we know it is bullshit. It goes against what we believe, it forces us to participate in this bullshit lie... but we do it, because we have a house payment to make. Now, when the boss isn't around, we take our mask off. When we are with trusted co-workers, we take out mask off. But, when we are with co-workers that are not trustworthy, we wear the mask. We hate it, but we do it. "just following orders " pull proud boys on of a downed antifa - after he got his ass beat down good - and say that's enough", and they made no arrest, and picked antifa up off the ground, and told him "get out of here". The cop then turned away (purposely) and walked off. 8 feet later, Proud Boys were beating that same antifa down again, lol!

SO my point is, I AGREE WITH DONALD TRUMP, and I support the cops. Yes, there are some liberal political cops. But most are not. They endorsed Trump in record numbers, as we all know. And we have to understand that they are between a rock and a hard place. At work, we all do what we have to do, when we have to do it. I have seen when they have helped us, and I have seen when they have betrayed us. The DC Police are not the best for helping us. They aren't. But, I have seen numerous instances where they were VERY cool, when they had the opportunity to do so.

When we start painting whole groups of people with a broad brush, we are not doing ourselves a favor.

I don't mind if you or anybody else disagree with me, we all come at things from different perspectives. We, are not the intolerant left. We understand that we can disagree on issues without being disagreeable, and we can all still agree that we are behind Trump, 100%.

Respect, I'm too lazy to argue my point as eloquently as you.

I will say 120 million citizens living in Dimorat run Cities. Probably agree with me. The whole point of defund the police was to get rid of the "good cop".

To be clear, I'm sure throughout the red states the police department's are probably 90% good cops. In the blue states it's 90% bad cop.

Reasonable, but you have to remember..."just doing your job" doesn't cut it when you work for the people and you have that kind of authority. These aren't just your everyday Joe going to greet at Walmart. The decisions these cops make everyday have much more gravity than you or I obeying our employers' mask requirements. I'm all back the blue, but no excuses for cops who enforce unconstitutional actions (mandates, laws, etc) under color of law. Sorry not sorry.

your comment reminded me of reading about the Dublin fire brigade during the Irish war of independence. The Irish attacked and burnt the customs house which was important for taxation and british administration of Dublin and Ireland - the british-paid/overseen fire brigade secretly spread the fires to ensure more records destroyed and structural damage - fires that were put out mysteriously started again and they acted so innocent - playing the brits for fools...

Just because something is legal doesn't make it moral, and just because you're paid to do something legal but immoral doesn't mean you will - people are rebellious by nature, hence why it takes decades, trillions, countless wars and corrupt politicians, businesses and institutions for the enemy to effect greater control over society.

Also remember the senators who stabbed Caesar were killed by a vengeful populist uprising, so if Trump or any other leaders of the people - of the 99% are killed... it's up to the masses to avenge them - in minecraft.
